Hi Amasty blog readers!

We are delighted to know that our nearest neighbours are hosting a wonderful Meet Magento Poland event just in a few days. Today we’re sharing some details about the conference and hope that all the organizers, speakers and visitors will spend these two days in the atmosphere of friendship, joy, and collaboration.

First things first, here are the details about the location in case you’re visiting the conference. By the way, if you’ll be there – drop us a word!
This year Meet Magento Poland gathers an incredible number of Magento and e-commerce specialists. Here are several must-see speeches we picked for you, but that doesn’t mean the others are not worth listening to, on the contrary! There are too many of them to fit in the picture below.
For the full agenda please visit Meet Magento Poland website.

Amasty Chief Technology Officer Andrei Vashkevich is going to speak at the event, and you’re welcome to visit his presentation and ask any questions. Also, if you notice him anywhere on location, please come and say hello or throw him a tweet, he’ll be happy to talk all things Magento:

– Andrei, what thoughts do you have in mind while packing things to leave for Warsaw?
– I’m delighted to visit this Meet Magento event. Well, indeed I have seen many Meet Magento conferences before, but this doesn’t sound like ‘oh another one’ at all. Contributing to the community, communication with minds alike and not only following, but also creating tendencies have always been a priority for Amasty. This year Meet Magento Poland agenda is very rich in intriguing speeches, and it’s a honor to stand on the same stage with the colleagues.

What is more, I’m always happy to talk to our partners, including the future ones, to see some old friends and discuss timely questions. I do think these events have become an integral part of Magento community, and without them we wouldn’t have been where we are now.

See you in Warsaw and do zobaczenia!

P.S. Don’t forget to participate – you can win a free ticket for 2015 event.
